SHORT-TERM ESL PROGRAM

Monthly Short-term Program Structure & Pricing

This document outlines the structure and pricing of potential short-term programs on offer with other universities. These prices are meant to serve as a guide for the construction and customization of particular programs. The pricing below is reflective of the cost structure for a 1-month program. If a longer program is desired, the price would then be compounded by the number of months for the program. Effort has been made for this price to be as accurate as possible. However, the price might increase based on changes made to the program structure or events and activities. For questions or for additional information please contact Dr. Svetlana Koltovskaia, koltovsk@nsuok.edu.

Short-term (1 Month) Program Course Options & Objectives

The courses outlined below are available for the duration of the (1) month program. These outlines are meant to provide direction and insight into what we can offer. Alterations and customization of course focus and objectives are possible based on needs and goals of the program.

English for Academic Purposes

This course is designed to expose students to the trends and tendencies within Academic English. Namely, through discourse analysis and recreation, this course is designed to enable students to gain a stronger understanding of the rhetorical structure and forms used in a variety of academic genres including lectures, presentations, emails, essays and research papers. Additionally, students will benefit from developing a stronger sense of vocabulary, grammar and rhetoric readily employed within the academic register.

Students will be able to:

- » Recognize and analyze rhetorical structure in different academic discourses.
- » Identify and utilize structure, vocabulary and phrases preferred within their target academic genre.
- » Employ analytical strategies to interpret and recreate different genres of academic texts.
- » Identify trends, tendencies and expectations within academic culture in the United States.

Short-term ESL Program

Foundations of English Language

This course serves as a survey of the English language. Encompassing all four language skills (speaking, listening, writing, and reading), this course aims to enhance students' understanding and production of the English language. In addition to authentic skill-centered practice, this course offers attention to grammatical and lexical features of the English language.

Students will be able to:

- » Express their ideas fluently in written and oral forms.
- » Identify main ideas and key vocabulary in writing and speech.
- » Recognize the form and function of grammatical features and apply that knowledge in communicative efforts.
- » Apply knowledge of grammar and vocabulary to edit their own texts and speech.
- » Recognize strategies and expectations for high-stakes English tests

Culture and Conversations

This course serves as an introduction to English language speaking and conversation, as well as a survey of American academic, social and popular culture. The focus of this program is an introduction to spoken English, conversational strategies and familiarity with major aspects of American culture.

Students will be able to:

- » Reflect upon cultural norms present within American Culture
- » Engage in dialogue surrounding historical and cultural events in the U.S.
- » Distinguish between cultural values/practices in the U.S. and around the world
- » Discuss the relationship between historical events and current American ideology
